New at the Library!

In Praise of Wolves by R.D. Lawrence

The popular field naturalist and writer R.D. Lawrence lived not far from Vankoughnet, in Haliburton. He spent the last part of his life studying wolves. While in Alaska, he and his wife "adopted" two orphaned wolf cubs, drove them back to Haliburton, and established them in his nature sanctuary. This gave him a chance for some very close-up study! Read this fascinating book to learn more about that most intriguing of wild animals, the wolf, and its place in the animal kingdom.

There's more than books at the Library - check out our magazines and our wide collection of videos!

Can't find what you like?

The Library committee is interested in input from residents and visitors. Come in and let us know what new books, authors or book series you would like to see at the library.
